Biographical Sketch

Edward P. Mulvey is a Professor of Psychiatry and Director of the Law and Psychiatry Program at Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic at the University of Pittsburgh, School of Medicine. He has been at the University of Pittsburgh since 1983. He has conducted numerous research studies on violence and mental illness, prediction of future violence and crime, juvenile offenders, service provision in the juvenile justice system, and criminal justice policy. His research has investigated how clinicians make judgments about the risk posed by adults with mental illness and juvenile offenders, and what treatments are appropriate in these types of cases. He has recently served as the principal investigator on a longitudinal study of serious adolescent offenders, the Pathways to Desistance study, and as a member of two National Academy of Sciences panels assessing juvenile justice reform. Dr. Mulvey is currently a member of the Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency and chair of the Science Advisory Board for the Office of Justice Programs of the U. S. Department of Justice. Dr. Mulvey received his B.A. in psychology from Yale University, his Ph.D. in Community/Clinical Psychology from the University of Virginia, and post-doctoral training in quantitative methods in criminal justice at Carnegie-Mellon University.
