Two years ago, a 17-year-old teenager made an important decision to attend Duquesne University for his undergraduate studies in Biology. At the time, he did not have any deep emotion for Duquesne. By the end of freshman year, he was showing outward signs and inward joy that indicated he had fallen in love with his university and could not stop telling his friends and family about it. His first feeling of school pride was stirred after Fr. Sean Hogan delivered the Mission Statement and Expectations for Duquesne students. He was impressed and inspired to be proud of his school and perform well academically, socially, and in life.

THE EASTERN TRIDUUM

From the evening of Holy Thursday to the evening of Easter Sunday, the church’s focus is entirely on the celebration of Christ’s Paschal Mystery. The Easter Triduum, as these three days are known, is the most important season of the church year. It is the time when the entire church participates in the saving mystery of Christ’s passion, death and resurrection. Along with the Ascension, these important events make up the Paschal Mystery.

HOLY THURSDAY

As we celebrate the Mass of the Lord’s Supper on Holy Thursday it is not simply a remembering of the events of the last supper. It is a call to the celebration of the life that Jesus gives us in and through the institution of the Eucharist when he said “do this in memory of me.” Luke 22:19.

GOOD FRIDAY

- On Good Friday the church Venerates the Cross on which Christ died and proclaims the passion of our Lord Jesus Christ as part of our observance. The veneration challenges us to be willing to accept the crosses in our daily lives. There is no Mass.

HOLY SATURDAY

- On Holy Saturday there is a deep symbolism upon which we can reflect. On this day, the Church waits at the Lord’s tomb, and meditates on Christ’s Passion and Death. No Mass is offered.

EASTER VIGIL

- Often referred to as the “night of all nights” the Easter Vigil Mass begins at sundown on Holy Saturday. On this night, we enter fully into the Christian story as the waters of baptism flow and the church rejoices in the resurrection and celebrates the sacraments of initiation.

- We begin with the service of light where we gather around the new fire that conveys the truth that Christ is the light of the world. The fire is blessed, and the paschal candle is lighted to illumine the night so that all may hear the Easter proclamation and listen to the word of God proclaimed in the Scriptures. The Paschal Candle, held high, is the symbol of the light of Christ, rising in glory, scattering the darkness of our hearts and minds.

- In the service of the Word, we recount the outstanding deeds of the history of salvation and our redemption. These deeds are related in seven readings from the Old Testament chosen from the law and the prophets and two readings from the New Testament, namely from the apostles and from the gospel. Thus, the Lord “beginning with Moses and all the prophets” (Lk 24.27, 44-45) meets us once again on our journey to prepare us to share in the breaking of the bread and the drinking of the cup.

- Our evening culminates in the celebration of the initiation sacraments of Baptism, Confirmation and Eucharist, with the use of water and holy oils. The richness of this night opens our hearts and engages our senses. From the lighting of the fire to the celebration of the sacraments, we are steeped into the rich history and symbols of our faith—a celebration that should not be missed!

As part of our Easter Celebration, instead of saying the Creed, we renew our Baptismal Vows, hopefully rising with Christ to a higher form of our Christian Living. Happy Easter!

part of the Mission Statement includes “Duquesne serves God by serving students…” He greatly appreciates the school’s effort to openly and confidently express their religious beliefs. This spiritual study environment nurtures his attitude of “be diligent and sincere in the pursuit of education…” He believed that God was calling him to the medical profession instead of his choice of the computer field. The confirmation was made clear through the act of kindness extended by Dr. Nerone who provided free medical services to his mother who had no health insurance at the time. The realization of knowing the physician’s ability to help the poor and needy convinced him to change the course of action. Although a science major was not his first pick, he is doing it because of his faith in God. He believes that he is studying for Him, and he trusts with all his heart that God will enable him to finish this course. This incomprehensible faith motivates and drives him to study hard and give all he has when facing challenges. Sometimes, the outcomes did not match the effort that he spent. During moments like that, he prayed and disciplined himself to refocus. Such practice reminds him of his commitment to God. The satisfaction of success does not only refer to task completion, but the elements of “be honest and have integrity in everything.” Having honesty and integrity involve doing what one believes is right regardless of the situation. For this new college student, it means that he must do what is right in the eyes of God. His conviction was soon being tested by an unexpected inquiry. During his freshman year, Calculus was one of the tutor frequently. One time the tutor mentioned a special assignment that other students had gone to him for help. The college student knew the assignment was meant for each student to complete without the help of another person. Obviously, the tutor had no knowledge of it. There was no doubt that the extra help would offer a chance to obtain an overall higher score for the course. For a moment, the temptation to forsake the integrity that he vowed to keep clearly presented itself. He was truly challenged and humbled, and thankfully, he chose to complete the assignment alone. The outcome of his grade did not reward his effort. Those who received extra help did receive a higher grade than him. Strangely, he did not regret his decision; in fact, he felt a sense of peace and assurance. Fortunately, studying at Duquesne does not always put this college student in the integrity dilemma. The experience also involves meeting people from all races and cultures. Growing up, he was taught the value of “appreciate diversity, be welcoming to others.” Here at Duquesne, he is given the chance to live out what he learned. One time, he invited an Asian friend to attend a Pirates game with him. It was his friend’s first time to see a baseball game in person, and he thoroughly enjoyed it. The long game provided ample time for them to learn about each other. After that outing, his friend began to help him with Chemistry assignments, and he returned the favor by guiding him with his religious papers. This way of study allowed them to recognize and respect each other’s strength. Perhaps there are other Duquesne students who share the similar personality traits that are mentioned in this writing, but I am the young college student in this story. My life at Duquesne University has been enriched in knowledge and character. Through many school-pride events and circumstances, I have developed a strong sense of pride for Duquesne University. Truthfully, there is no other school in the world that I would rather attend than this great religious university. As the rest of my life begins to unfold, I plan to continue to fulfill the Expectations from the Mission Statement and be the most Duquesne-able student I can be.

ANNUAL CARNIVAL EXPANDS

Carnival is in its 58th year! Carnival, an event planned for the entire university community, features shows and concession booths, and will be held in the A.J. Palumbo Center at 5 p.m. on Friday, April 3 and 1 p.m. on Saturday, April 4. Admission is $3 and all proceeds benefit the Brashear Association.

This year Carnival is adding One Acts, or smaller scaled shows, that allow us to showcase all of Duquesne’s talent, not just members of Greek organizations. Any Duquesne student can perform on stage, showcasing talent in singing, dancing, or theater acts. In addition, dozens of other student organizations will be selling food or providing entertainment at various booths. Donations from businesses and organizations in the Greater Pittsburgh area will be given away as prizes!

Saturday at 7:30 p.m., the Duquesne Program Council (DPC) will be hosting Comedian Steve Hofstetter. Steve has performed at dozens of clubs and over 100 colleges each year and has appeared on CBS’ Late Late Show with Craig Ferguson, ESPN’s Quite Frankly, Showtime’s White Boyz in the Hood, VH1’s Countdown, ABC’s Barbara Walters Special and numerous other programs.

Carnival has recently been held in the Spring semester. However, starting next fall, Carnival will return as part of the festivities for Homecoming weekend!

BISHOP ZUBIK KEYNOTES DOWNTOWN LUNCHEON

The Most Rev. David A. Zubik, D.D., A’71, GE’82, was the keynote speaker at the 2009 Duquesne University Downtown Luncheon on March 25 at the David L. Lawrence Convention Center. The annual event attracted hundreds of local alumni and friends. Bishop Zubik, who received both his undergraduate and graduate degrees from Duquesne, shared insights on current issues and remembrances from his formative years on our Bluff.

DIVERSITY DEFINED

The second annual Diversity Fair, sponsored by the Office of Mission and Identity and the President’s Advisory Council on Diversity, was held on March 24. The Diversity Fair is one of the council’s broad-based initiatives that helps spotlight ongoing efforts to increase the sense of community and appreciation of diversity on Duquesne’s campus.

Duquesne has a long history of commitment to inclusion and diversity, stemming from the mission of our founders, the Spiritan Congregation. Today, this commitment is demonstrated by many activities and programs, from establishing a minority faculty hiring program and funding scholarships for the disadvantaged, to accommodating religious services of different faith traditions and organizing events such as International Student Week and the annual Disability Luncheon. The offices of International Programs and Multicultural Affairs play major roles on campus in furthering inclusion.

This year’s Diversity Fair featured more than 50 exhibits that demonstrated the University’s initiatives to develop and enhance the racial, gender, geographic, religious and economic diversity of the campus. Attendees also selected a winner of the Student Life Diversity Bulletin Board contest.

STUDENTS SPEND SPRING BREAK ON CROSS/CULTURAL MISSIONS EXPERIENCES

Over Spring Break, Spiritan Campus Ministry sponsored several CCME’s to New Orleans, Immokalee, Florida, and Pittsburgh. Students and young alumni who were on the Pittsburgh Plunge spent four days exploring root causes of poverty and food insecurity while also working in the neighborhoods that surround Duquesne University.

Another 14 students and staff spent the whole week in Immokalee, Florida. Although the group took in some sun, it wasn’t spent lounging on the beach but learning about the injustices and modern day slavery that exists in the tomato fields of Southwest Florida. Students worked with the Coalition of Immokalee Workers while living and working at a local community center. The students also built a 24 x 37 foot raised-bed garden with the community.

Twenty-four students and staff went to New Orleans, LA, for a trip that was described as a “life-changing experience.” One of the goals was to work with Habitat for Humanity in their efforts to rebuild New Orleans after the devastation of Hurricane Katrina in August 2005. The group toured the area to get the full impact of the storm’s devastation and the enormity of the task of rebuilding still to be done, worked side by side with local people and volunteers from all over the country, and heard the people’s stories. You can visit the SCM Web site for more information.

UP ‘TIL DAWN

Up ‘til Dawn is a Duquesne student organization dedicated to raising awareness and helping to provide financial resources for St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital. Duquesne’s Up ‘til Dawn has engaged in a year-long awareness campaign across campus and many students wrote letters to their families asking for their support to help St. Jude’s. Student organizations across campus and many interested individuals united to help St. Jude’s and the campus effort celebrated in the Rock the Cure Finale Event held on February 13. Over 226 students stayed “up all night” from 6 p.m. until 1 a.m. to celebrate the success of the campus program. To date, over $34,000 has been raised by Duquesne students to help fight childhood cancer and support St. Jude’s!

STUDENTS HONORED FOR ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

Each year, Duquesne honors students who reach high levels of academic achievement with special recognition events. Freshmen who have achieved a 3.5 QPA or higher earned a place on the University’s 2009 Director’s Circle and attended a Feb. 3 reception. The same achievers were also invited to join Phi Eta Sigma, a national freshman honor society, and will celebrate at a dinner on April 13. Seven hundred upper-class honor students were inducted into the Golden Key Honour Society on Feb. 8. This international honor society recognizes scholastic achievement among the top 15% of sophomores, juniors, seniors and graduate students.

MEN’S/WOMEN’S BASKETBALL RECAP

It was a memorable season of college basketball on the Bluff with both the men’s and women’s teams enjoying unprecedented success. For the first time in school history, both programs posted 20 wins and both went on to post-season play with the men earning a spot in the National Invitation Tournament and the women hosting a Women’s National Invitation Tournament game at the Palumbo Center.

The men, who finished 21-13 in their third season under head coach Ron Everhart, came within six points of earning an automatic NCAA Tournament bid with a dramatic run at the Atlantic 10 Championship in Atlantic City, N.J. that saw the seventh-seeded Dukes defeat No. 10 Massachusetts, No. 2 Rhode Island and No. 3 Dayton on successive days prior to dropping a 69-64 decision to fourth-seeded Temple in the tournament’s final game. The Dukes, who defeated four teams that played in this year’s NCAA tournament (Xavier, Dayton, Radford and Robert Morris), were rewarded for their performance with a bid to the NIT, marking the school’s first post-season appearance since 1994.

The women’s team, under the direction of second-year head coach Suzie McConnell-Serio, went 20-12 in posting the first 20-win season in program history. The Dukes, who were picked to finish eighth in the Atlantic 10 in a preseason poll of league coaches, finished in a four-way tie for fourth in a conference that sent eight teams on to post-season play. The women capped the season by hosting Butler in the WNIT.

EIGHT DAYS IN MARCH

Over an eight-day span in mid-March, Duquesne University received unprecedented media coverage through the post-season efforts of the 2008-09 men’s basketball team. DU’s run to the final game of the Atlantic 10 Championship - the school’s first appearance in the title game since 1981 - was chronicled by CBS College Sports regional television (which aired the quarterfinal and semifinal games) and the title game loss to Temple was aired nationally by ESPN2. A Damian Saunders dunk and Aaron Jackson drive from the Championship final against the Owls were both featured on the “Gym Gems” portion of ESPN’s College Game Day that evening.

In addition, a photo of a smiling Melquan Bolding cradling a loose ball during DU’s A-10 semifinal win over Dayton graced the front page of ESPN’s web site the morning of March 14.

The media coverage continued as the Dukes made their first National Invitation Tournament appearance since 1994 in a first round NIT game at Virginia Tech on March 18. The double-overtime 116-108 loss to the Hokies was also televised live nationally by ESPNU. Highlights of that game were the lead story on ESPN’s SportsCenter that evening.

In all, it was a whirlwind stretch of five games in eight days that saw the men’s basketball program elevated to another level as Duquesne earned part of the national spotlight for its version of March Madness.
SPRING 2009 GRADUATION

Graduation is a very special time when family, friends, faculty and students gather to celebrate the significant achievements of our graduates. President Charles J. Dougherty will officially confer degrees upon the Class of 2009 at a University-wide Commencement Ceremony to be held at 5 p.m. on Friday, May 8, in the A.J. Palumbo Center. The Baccalaureate Mass in the Duquesne Union Ballroom will precede this ceremony at 3 p.m. Dr. Martin C. Mihm, A’55, a renown cancer specialist, will address the graduating class. Light refreshments for all graduates and guests will be served on Academic Walk following Commencement.

On Saturday, May 9, individual schools will host recognition ceremonies to personally recognize each graduating student with the traditional distribution of diploma jackets. For more information, visit www.duq.edu/graduation.

LAW SCHOOL'S MOOT COURT TEAMS: UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS

Each year, 16 law schools from across the country compete in the Tournament of Champions. To be invited to this competition, a team must maintain one of the highest rankings in moot court competition over a three year period. On November 1, 2008, the Duquesne team was awarded the championship trophy, and the Duquesne law school will host the competition in 2010.

A Duquesne team captured another invitational championship at the Buffalo-Niagra Invitation Trial Competition on November 10, 2008. Thirty schools competed in this event, which is the largest invitational trial tournament in the country. Duquesne Law students made the top of the pool.

A team of four more Duquesne students won the American Bar Association Labor and Employment Regional Trial Moot Court Competition in Chicago, and the Mock Client Counseling Team was a semi-finalist in the regional competition in St. Paul. A Duquesne student was the runner-up for Best Advocate at the 2009 National Animal Law Moot Court competition at Harvard.

A third-year team won every trial in the American Association for Justice Student Trial Advocacy Regional Competition by a unanimous vote, and they will compete in the national competition in West Palm Beach on April 2. The second-year team also performed exceptionally well by defeating the University of Pennsylvania, University of Arkansas, and Appalachian School of Law to make the final round where they were narrowly defeated by the University of North Carolina.

For more information about the members and coaches of these teams, please visit www.law.duq.edu.

Students, faculty, and staff, along with local community residents and business owners, will be picking up litter in Uptown, the Hill District, and the South Side. The event is aimed at raising the consciousness of the participants to the community in which they live. Participants also get to know residents and business people in our surrounding communities. Each year, over 500 volunteers come out for the day to give of their time and celebrate together. The day ends with a “Taste of the Neighborhood” lunch in each community, along with live music.

Team sheets are available at www.campusministry.duq.edu. Check-in and breakfast are at 9 a.m. under Mellon Patio and lunch will begin around 1 p.m. All students, faculty, and staff are welcome to participate! Families of faculty and staff with children over the age of twelve are welcome to participate as well! For more information, please contact Luci-Jo DiMaggio at X1405 or dimaggi171@duq.edu. We hope to see you on April 18!
