Using the Theater as a vehicle for Sustainability Education:

A Presentation By Travis Barkefelt

Serving as a Representative of the Duquesne Red Masquers

Contact: barkefeltt@duq.edu

The purpose of this project is to utilize theater arts to accomplish sustainability education. Shown within three examples on the poster, the target audience is school age children, but the show also provides scenarios for those in the theater industry to consider. The writing style is an affectionate parody of the very on the nose after school specials making the message entertaining and educational to both kids and adults. With an almost self-aware cheesiness the show maintains a level of relatability that the overly earnest after school specials it riffs off of often lacked.