Spring 2020
Course Offerings
Classical Civilizations & Latin

Last Updated: October 7, 2019

CLSX 122 - Etymology of Scientific Terms
Introduction to Greek and Latin elements of scientific terminology. Lecture, Online. Offered every semester.

Sections:
01 - MWF 10:00 a.m. - 10:50 a.m.  Dr. Stephen T. Newmyer

CLSX 123 - Greek and Roman Mythology
The major myths of Greece and Rome with special attention to contemporary interpretations of myth and the influence of myth on art and literature. Lecture. Theme Area Creative Arts. Offered spring only.

Sections:
01 – MWF 12:00 pm – 12:50 pm  Dr. Sarah Miller

CLSX 210 - Caput Mundi: Rome Center of a Divided World
ITALIAN CAMPUS ONLY
An overview of the cultural history of Rome from c. 400 BC to AD 590. This course uses the city of Rome with its abundance of archaeological sites and museums to provide a comprehensive overview of the Roman world, its history, culture and society.

Sections:
98 TBA  Elisabeth Schembri & Michael A. Wright

CLSX 211: History of Ancient Women
An investigation into the lives and representations of women and girls in historical and literary texts, art, and material culture in ancient Greece and Rome. The course examines representations of female bodies, work, familial roles, and religious roles.

x-listing: HIST 212

Sections:
01 – MWF 11:00 pm – 11:50 pm  Dr. Sarah Miller
CLSX 244: History of Ancient Medicine
Examination of the most significant medical theories and practices in the period from the Egyptian temple physicians to the doctors of the Roman Empire. Special attention will be given to Hippocrates and Galen.

x-listing: HIST 244

Sections:
01 – MWF 12:00 pm – 12:50 pm  Dr. Stephen T. Newmyer

CLSX 257: America and Antiquity
The course begins with the Constitution of the USA, and the thinking of the founders who wrote it (especially the Federalist Papers). It then shows their debt to ancient Greek and Roman authors (Plato, Aristotle, Cicero, Plutarch, and Tacitus, among others). One goal is therefore to appreciate the intellectual history that influenced the founders, but another is to understand and assess the philosophical principles they sought to enshrine. Lecture. Offered irregularly.

x-listing: HIST 264

Sections:
01 – TR 9:25 am – 10:40 am  Dr. Patrick Miller

CLSX 403 - Classics Internship
This is a special elective for a Classics student interested in and qualified to apprentice with an organization selected in consultation with the Department of Classics. To earn 3 credits the student must have 120 contact hours with the selected organization. Internship. Offered every semester.

Sections:
91 TBA  Dr. Andrew T. Simpson
LATN 102 - Latin II
The fundamentals of Latin grammar and syntax with exercises in translation. Lecture. Offered Spring only.

Sections:
01 - MWF  9:00 a.m. - 9:50 a.m.  Dr. Sarah Miller

LATN 202 - Intermediate Latin II
Selections from major Latin authors. Readings. Offered Spring only.

Sections:
01 - MWF  9:00 a.m. - 9:50 a.m.  Dr. Stephen T. Newmyer

LATN 500 - Independent Research and Readings
Provides an opportunity to do independent reading and research under the supervision of a Classics faculty member with approval

Sections:
01  TBA  Dr. Sarah Miller

LATN 552 - Latin for Reading III

Sections:
01 - MWF  9:00 a.m. - 9:50 a.m.  Dr. Sarah Miller

LATN 554 - Intermediate Latin II

Sections:
01 - MWF  9:00 a.m. - 9:50 a.m.  Dr. Stephen T. Newmyer