Alex John London, PhD, is Professor of Philosophy and Director of the Center for Ethics and Policy at Carnegie Mellon University. An elected Fellow of the Hastings Center, his work centers on the ethical and policy issues surrounding the development and deployment of novel technologies in medicine, biotechnology and artificial intelligence. His papers have appeared in Mind, Science, The Lancet, PLoS Medicine, Statistics In Medicine and The Hastings Center Report. He is also co-editor of Ethical Issues in Modern Medicine. Professor London has helped shape key ethical guidelines for oversight of research with human participants; he has served on the Working Group on the Revision of CIOMS 2002 International Ethical Guidelines for Biomedical Research Involving Human Subjects. He also was an expert commentator at three World Medical Association meetings during the revision of the 2013 Declaration of Helsinki. Since 2007 he has been a member of the ethics working group of the U.S. HIV Prevention Trials Network that drafted the HIV Prevention Trials Network Ethics Guidance for Research. He also participated in the Academy of Medicine’s Committee on Clinical Trials. During the Ebola outbreak, he was appointed to the U.S. Health and Human Services Advisory Committee on Blood and Tissue Safety and Availability. He has been an expert ethics consultant with numerous national and international organizations: the National Institutes of Health, the World Health Organization, the World Medical Association and the World Bank.
