An integrated Center that brings together Recreation Services, Health Services, and Counseling Services.

Working within the Division of Student Life and in conjunction with the Office of Mission and Identity, the Center promotes an understanding of health that is holistic in nature. We believe that Duquesne’s objective is not only to educate students, but to assist in the formation of character through promoting resilience and ethical action, helping them meaningfully respond to the stress associated with being a 21st century college student in an ever-changing world.

Office of Student Conduct

“The Duquesne University Student Conduct system is intended to emphasize student learning through a developmental process that hold individuals accountable for their actions and provides opportunities for fostering greater self-discipline, personal growth, and respect for others.

The Code of Student Rights, Responsibilities and Conduct is available at www.duq.edu/studentcode

Anne Sawa, Director
What is best for the student and the community?

- What does the student need to learn from the process?
- How can the student benefit from this process?
- What is an appropriate response to help the student advance developmentally?
- How to protect the educational process for all students.
- What is best for the community as a whole.
Could this be the Career for You?
Why are students coming to college today?

"Incoming students are putting a premium on job-related reasons to go to college."

Center for Student Involvement

The Center for Student Involvement (CSI) is a collaboration of offices which include Commuter Affairs, Greek Life, and Student Involvement. These departments are key contributors to Duquesne University’s mission of serving God by serving students. CSI is committed to supporting and fostering the development of students through involvement in intentionally designed co-curricular experiences, environments, and services.

CSI provides students with a variety of opportunities to become actively involved in student organizations, leadership initiatives, and community service.

If students are looking to become involved on campus or in the Pittsburgh community, the departments within the Center for Student Involvement are the places to go for engagement opportunities.
