Renovation of the A.J. Palumbo to UPMC Cooper Fieldhouse

Presentation by Athletic Department

Duquesne University plans to renovate A.J. Palumbo Center, and is to break ground in the spring. The new name will be UPMC Cooper Fieldhouse; Cooper Fieldhouse in honor of men’s basketball legend and NBA trailblazer Chuck Cooper. Chuck was Duquesne’s men’s basketball team captain in 1947, then went to become the first African-American to be drafted into the NBA in 1950.

UPMC is a leading partner with Duquesne University on the renovations of this significant space to be used by students, staff, faculty and uptown neighbors. UPMC is very committed to uptown as a healthcare provider and as a community partner.

The exciting renovation is an important next step in furthering one of Duquesne’s key strategic initiatives.
